Moxy Maxwell Does Not
Love Stuart Little

By Peggy Elizabeth Gifford

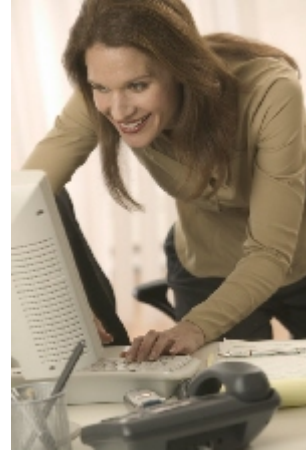

It's the day before fourth grade starts and all summer Moxy has been carrying around her assigned reading. But even the threat of knowing that she will probably be quizzed on it the first day of school has not been enough to get Moxy to even open Stuart Little - there's just been so much else to do. But now her mother is threatening to not let her go to the Goodbye to Summer Splash at the pool where she's supposed to be the eighth petal in the human daisy water ballet unless Stuart Little is finished first. Can she do it, despite the distractions of siblings, dogs and the brilliant Peach Orchard Plan?

Illustrated with Moxy's brother Mark's photographs, this book will appeal to anyone who has ever lamented the last day of summer vacation or procrastinated, even just a little bit.

By Sarah Annibali

This book can be found at J/GIF.

Volunteer Profile:

Pat Pence

Few may be aware of the untapped resource we have at the Lebanon Community Library. Pat Pence, a volunteer for nearly two decades, spends dozens of hours every week as our coupon clipper. Pat gathers the inserts from Sunday newspapers received at the library as well as those donated by patrons. She cuts, organizes coupons by product categories, and files them for easy access on a table in the Northeast corner of the library. This tedious and time-consuming effort has provided library patrons thousands of money-saving coupons. The next time you visit the Library, check out the coupon table and pick up a few to take on your next shopping trip. It will save you money and will show Pat her efforts are priceless.
